Invitation To Aggression.

"Non-resistance and lack of strength it appears, are sometimes an invitation to aggression, and this, we believe, is something of which we should take note at once. Not that war is a thing of the immediate future; yet if war is ever to come the mere instinct of selfpreservation directs that women, too, should be prepared to defend American deals of liberty, peace and honor. 'Preparation, as we have come to means preparation today; and at this coment, when the men are doing their part to insure us protection from war, there are many things with which women could be concerned. One thing American women can do today is to urge instant action by Congress. Another big opportunity lies in adding the special preparedness already begun by the Special Relief Society. This society has undertaken to complete at once a nation-wide organization of women for the purpose of not only considering good but instances of their shortcomings. The ancients frankly and humbly called them "sids."

The reminiscences of centuries cling to this day of days and make its lessons suggestive and impressive. In ancient times priestly solemnities invested it with dignity and the persecutions of later times gave it pathos and intense fervor. It is always a salutary experience to face the facts of life as they are, to realize that there are illusions and delusions, to bring home the truth that they work under the limitations of mind, heart, and will. The Day of Atonement is not for selfish privacies, as little as for benitence which is merely penance. It is for moral uplift by which may be acquired moral strength. The ritual of the day expresses opening to a moral will, as do customs of the day. Fasting is meant as a discipline of self-control, the sponsor of many virtues. Concentration upon the problems of character make it easy and noble. Public confession of sins is an act of will, an assertion of the best in one's self.
